

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a web site system including a center site and service sites accessible through the center site, a member information database is managed in the center site and stores member information of the service sites. The member information database stores the member information based on information concerning a member that is obtained at the center site or the service sites. And the center site sends the member information stored in the member information database to the service sites.

2025 RELEASE UNDER E.O. 14176